The pay raise of $15 per month will go into effect April 1.

Bids were received from three companies for office supplies, and low bid went to the Rockdale Reporter with a bid of $980.80. Other bids were from Hill Printing of Waco and Steck-Warlick of Austin.

Motion was passed for the Commissioners Court to have a public meeting in the courtroom Thursday, April 12. The meeting will be for the purpose of submitting the amount of revenue sharing funds received by the county and the purpose for which said funds have been obligated.

In other business, C. D. Caffey, commissioner of Precinct 4, was authorized to advertise for bids on a new pickup, and routine bills were paid.

A Cameron man has been charged with murder with malice following a shooting incident which took the life of a Cameron woman early Thursday morning.

Charged in Justice of the Peace Court was Dan Julian Bradley of 406 Scott Street. He was charged with shooting Annie Mae Boyd with a .38 pistol.

Mrs. Boyd was taken to Newton Hospital with a gunshot wound in the abdomen at 2:55 a.m. and died about 3:15 a.m. while awaiting transfer to Scott and White Hospital in Temple. Neighbors said she was the mother of two children.

Bradley was arrested at his home by Cameron Police Sgt. Ken Butler. Bradley was put in the county jail and was released on $5000 bond Thursday.

HUD Has City's Plan For Annual Arrangements

Cameron Planning Commission has its plan ready for a Housing and Urban Development representative when she came through Cameron Thursday.

The plan is for the Annual Arrangements program, for which the city, among 129 cities, is now eligible.

The commission, appointed especially for this program, worked overtime to have the plan ready for March 15.

A. W. McCullin, a chairman of the commission, said, "We will know by late May whether we will be funded. We expect to be called into conference with HUD before then. If the plan is funded, we will be ready to start the program July 1."

The program will provide some $124,000 a year for five years if the city wishes to participate. The plan drawn up by the commission includes the areas of streets, water and sewer, schools and parks, housing, and fire protection.

McCullin also told The Herald that he hoped the work could start this week on setting concrete forms for the mall block. Wet weather has hampered progress but grading is finished, along with removal of old concrete foundations and sidewalks.

Water Supply Corp. Proposes Extensions

By Lloyd Albertson

An estimated 125 members of the Milano Water Supply Corporation attended a meeting at the Friendship Baptist Church on Thursday night which was called to launch a drive to secure needed easements from landowners along the route of the Corporation's proposed water line extension down Highway 36 into the Chriesman and Hix areas.

The crowd, mostly residents of south Milam and Burleson Counties, was obviously concerned at the lack of progress on the water lines, which has been stalled almost a year. And during a businesslike hour and a half session they showed a determination to obtain the needed easements from property owners without further delay. Lack of easements has been the obstacle to construction of the water line extension.

The Corporation's president, L. E. Love, opened the meeting and then turned it over to Henry Ivey, local FHA supervisor, and Miles Locke of Waco, engineer for the project.

Ivey explained the necessity for getting easement permission from landowners and laying the lines on private property rather than running them on highways or country roads.

"We can -- and we do -- get permission to lay a water line on a road where it is absolutely necessary," he said. "But if there are more than a very few of these, the application to build the line will not be approved." The reason, he explained, was that county officials sometimes required a line on a road to be moved or abandoned and it could be a big expense to the water corporation.

Ivey said that the $310,000 in funds for the estimated cost of construction of the water line extension had been authorized and was available.

Locke passed out a large number of easement forms which had been prepared for landowner's signatures to members of the audience, mostly for them to pass along to neighbors whose signature was needed. He estimated that about 80 easements were still needed from landowners before construction could start on that section of the water line.

Within The System...

Walter Hickel, former Interior Secretary in the first Nixon term, the other day urged Baylor students wanting to change things to "jump into the political arena."

He means active political life, of course, and not the ill-considered street marches which got so much attention, nor the occupation movements in college administration buildings.

"What most people don't realize is that you can be tough and still have a heart. You can fight for what you believe in and still keep your credibility"

He might also suggest young people prepare themselves for assorted responses after young people go into politics such as, "why don't you grow up," "get that kid out of here," and "I am waiting for a more mature suggestion."

These are a few of the comments students will find awaiting their hopes for improvement and change, the same generation as their Boy Scout leaders, Sunday School teachers and others, who mean well, but see little change among men past the age of, say, 21.

Hickel is no longer in active national politics. He commented beyond what was considered his ken, and the President fired him. But he, Hickel, is right. The system's best changed within the system.

Volcano Causing Island To Rise, Claims Expert

By Paul Majendie

PARIS

One of the world's top experts on volcanoes is convinced that the Icelandic town of Vestmannaeyjar, stricken by a volcanic eruption last month, is now rising like a giant soufflé before crashing to its ruin.

French scientist Haroun Tazieff was speaking on his return from a reconnaissance trip to the town, which was the largest and most prosperous fishing port in the little North Atlantic island nation. Most of its people were evacuated when disaster first threatened.

"Nothing can be done. For the first time in my life I am pessimistic," Tazieff said.

Vestmannaeyjar, already looking like a ghost town with only 500 of its original 5,500 population left, will be buried if the nearby volcano of Kirkjufell continues to erupt for another two months, he added.

But the main and most lethal danger, he said, was represented by the gasses that have been seeping into houses. In his opinion these are volcanic gasses which are making the island rise like a soufflé.

"The gas can escape into cellars. It is mortal, it has already claimed every rat in the city and it is a danger to the remaining inhabitants," he said in an interview.

"Worst of all this gas can be a possible forerunner to another eruption and a new crater right in the middle of the city. If this happens, Vestmannaeyjar would be buried in a matter of hours by rapid flows of lava and millions of tons of ashes," he added.

Tazieff, who was sent on his fact-finding mission by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), was held up in Reykjavik by violent storms before flying on to the pumic-laden town.

In Vestmannaeyjar, Tazieff and other scientists he worked with were billeted in the aquarium of the local museum.

"We slept on the floor in a huge room with 12 fish tanks. At night, with the volcano erupting and roaring outside in the doomed city, we could see big fish swimming at us and baring their teeth," he said.

"I've never spent a night like that in my life," he added with a shudder.

After detailed investigations of the lava flow he recommended that the highest concentrations of gas in the city should be located and monitored, and when the temperature started to rise everyone should be evacuated quickly.

The townspeople, no strangers to the phenomenon after witnessing the formation of nearby Surtsey Island by a volcanic eruption that began in 1963, are stunned by the new eruption so near their town.

In efforts to shield the town, bulldozer crews have built earth barriers and firemen have used water hoses on the flow of lava. But Tazieff, who once tried a similar method on Sicily's Mount Etna during an eruption, does not recommend this because the lava flow is too wide and too hot.

Tazieff's gloom is also shared by American expert Dr. Stirling Colgate, who, after touring the town, rejected the idea of explosives for diverting the lava.

"If we exploded plastic bombs in the lava it might cause chain explosions all through the area and in buried houses," Colgate said.

But despite all this advice the town's mayor, Magnus Magnusson, who has constantly refused to leave, defiantly said "We are going to fight the volcano."

Lt. Gov. Hobby Forecasts Early Senate Approval

By Bill Boykin

Early senate approval was forecast by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby for HB 3 to strengthen the open meetings law.

The bill was cleared by a criminal matters subcommittee of the Jurisprudence Committee last week.

The shield bill (HB 10) to protect newsmen from forced disclosure of information sources was due consideration in the criminal matters subcommittee this week. It will be expanded to include definitions contained in a U. S. Senate bill and probably amended to provide for a State Supreme Court mandamus proceeding to compel disclosure of information sources under certain cases, according to Senate sponsor, Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena.

Hearing was delayed until April 10 on HB 6 to broaden accessibility of information on government records pending a Legislative Budget Board estimate on the cost of the act to the state.

TAX BILL SEEN

Legislators will be forced to write a new tax bill due to demands of higher education and welfare, the chairmen of an interim House Revenue and Tax Committee maintain.

If the regular session manages to get by with no tax bill, lawmakers will be called into special session to pass one, predicted Rep. Don Cavness of Austin. Rep. Joe Wyatt of Bloomington, co-chairman of the Committee, shared the gloomy forecast, adding that federal welfare guidelines will cost the state an extra $100 million a year.

Cavness also cited the estimated $28 million a year cost of an adult education bill and a $13 million - cost measure to insure teachers a duty-free lunch hour, plus the multi-million-dollar bilingual education bill.

Both lawmakers also referred to the federal case involving validity of the state's method of financing public school education.

Texas, the Committee found, ranks 40th among 50 states in tax load but has among the most regressive tax systems. The Committee recommended a permanent revenue and tax staff, increased use of bond income for appropriation, use of private collection attorneys and a monthly reporting option.

18-YEAR-OLD-RIGHTS

Full rights of maturity for 18-to-20 year olds received tentative senate approval by a 19-11 vote.

The Senate also passed legislation to slow creation of new state-supported colleges by requiring prior approval of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Still later, senators voted to extend collective bargaining rights (but not the right to strike) to policemen and firemen. Local governing bodies would have an option to grant the rights or order elections on the issue.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Frank,

My purpose for writing is twofold.

First, I want to commend you for your column of three weeks ago in which you scolded, in a subtle way, the Cameron residents who voted against your proposed school bond issue.

As a product of Cameron schools, I can imagine how badly passage of that bond issue was needed. Vast improvements were needed 10, 15 years ago when I was a student there.

Your kind of editorial courage, particularly in a small town, is something I point to with pride in journalism ethics classes.

On another note, I had the pleasure two weeks ago of visiting with State Rep. Dan Kubiak in Austin. The meeting occurred while I was showing a group of reporting students around the state capitol.

Before meeting with Kubiak the student group had interviewed several state officials. Students were astounded and disappointed at officials lack of candor and lack of desire to answer most of their questions. Evasiveness had been the name of the game. Until we came to Kubiak.

Seldon have I found an elected official as willing to talk, on the record, about issues the public has a right to know about. Aside from being open, he appears to maintain a grasp of knowledge and understanding of issues that few people in the state house have. Cameron is indeed fortunate to have a man of his stature representing its residents.

I mention this to you because, as a newsman, I know you, too, are concerned with the credibility gap that seems to exist between the press, public officials and the public.

Editorial courage, such as you have exhibited, and total candor, as Kubiak exhibits, can go a long way toward closing that gap.

Sincerely
Robert L. Mann
Asst. Professor of Journalism, SMU

Poage Asks For Inquiries

WASHINGTON

Concerned with the spread between food prices at the retail market level and prices the farmer receives for his products, Chairman W. R. (Bob) Poage, D-Texas, today requested the Subcommittee on Department Operations to hold a two-day inquiry into the matter to see if any action can be taken to help consumers.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. E. de la Garza, D-Texas, will conduct the study. He noted that those invited to testify will include officials of both the Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The meetings will be held at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, March 22, and Friday, March 23.

Among other things, the subcommittee will seek data on the cost of production of raw food products 20 years ago, 10 years ago and today, as well as comparative prices on food items at the consumer level.

"Unfortunately, a lot of people are placing the blame for high food prices on the farmer," said Congressman de la Garza. "We all are concerned about rising food costs, and if we can do so, we would like to pin point the cause and seek remedial action."

When Rural Areas Suffer...

We all lose!

In December, 1972, the President, while Congress was not in Session, abruptly...

- ★ Abolished the Rural Electric Direct Loan Program.
- ★ Raised the interest rate on rural electric loans to more than DOUBLE the rate set by Congress.
- ★ Abolished the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (SOIL CONSERVATION PROGRAM & EMERGENCY DISASTER LOANS)
- ★ Stopped all grants to rural water systems.

WHAT THIS MEANS...

- Less rural electric service
- Higher rural electric bills
- Fewer rural water systems
- Erosion of our farmland
- Less environmental protection
- Higher farm costs
- Higher food costs
- More young people moving to cities
- Overcrowded cities

These programs are still needed, their termination will adversely affect EVERY Texas resident.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

YOU can help by writing your Congressman, Senators and the President, asking them to restore these programs so badly needed in Texas. In your own handwriting and in your own way, just tell them we need REAP, Emergency loans and REA loans in Texas.

Kissinger Preparing For Talks On U. S. Relations

By Ronald Clarke

WASHINGTON — Presidential Adviser Dr. Henry Kissinger, his work completed on reaching a Vietnam peace agreement, is preparing for a round of intensive talks on U. S. relations with western Europe, Japan and the Middle East, informed sources said today.

Kissinger, whose presidential missions have taken him to Moscow, Peking, Saigon, Hanoi and Paris in the past two years, is expected to visit capitals in his new area of interest after a series of briefings and diplomatic negotiations here, the sources said.

President Nixon has begun a round of meetings with European leaders and the United States is trying to bring the Arabs and Israelis to the negotiating table to discuss a Middle East peace agreement.

U. S. relations with Japan have been strained by the huge profits surplus Japan has built up in two-way trade. Economic relations are expected to play a major role in Kissinger's negotiations with both Japan and western Europe.

Kissinger, in preparation for his new assignment, is reorganizing his staff of 120 international military and political affairs experts and is expected to employ a few more assistants, including a senior aide on economic matters, the sources said.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz will still be in charge of dealing with day-to-day economic problems, such as the present currency crisis, and Kissinger will dwell more on long-range solutions, the sources added.

The 49-year-old German born adviser is taking a two-week vacation, starting this weekend, to rest after his tough and long Vietnam negotiations.

Then he will get down to his new task after helping to complete the White House annual foreign policy message, expected to be finished early next month.

In Western Europe, Kissinger is expected to concentrate on such questions as the long-term effects of Common Market policies on U. S. exports -- Washington has already complained that market policies reduced potential sales of U. S. farm goods -- and how long the United States needs to maintain a military force of 300,000 men in Europe.

Administration policy so far has been that the United States would reduce its forces only if forces east of the Elbe were also cut back. East-West negotiations on force reductions are being held in Vienna.

Nixon, who began a series of meetings with west European leaders when British Prime Minister Edward Heath visited Washington last month, will meet Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti here on April 17.

Kissinger, who confers with Nixon every day when both men are in Washington, will attend many of these meetings in preparation for his own missions.

He is expected eventually to visit Israel and the Arab capitals as part of U. S. efforts to get Middle East peace talks under way.

There has been speculation here that Kissinger might offer to act as mediator in the U. S. plan to hold indirect talks between the Egyptians and Israelis on reopening the Suez Canal.

Under the U. S. proposal, Israeli and Egyptian delegations would meet separately but in the same city, with a third party, presumably the United States, acting as go-between.

Diplomatic experts said Kissinger excels in the role of mediator, but that his stepping into the Middle East area could upset senior state department officials, who regard the Arab-Israeli dispute as being within their domain.

In U. S. economic experts believe Japan should further revalue the yen upward against the U. S. dollar, making U. S. exports to Japan cheaper and increasing the costs of the flood of Japanese goods in the United States.

CHECK SPICES

Check spices periodically for quality -- rub a little between your palms and smell for characteristic fragrance. If it's gone, buy new spice, recommends Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

Cancer Virus May Be 'Caught'

By Peter Kiernan

NEW YORK — Studies of two sets of twins, one of each pair suffering from leukemia, has convinced cancer researchers here that this form of cancer at least is a virus which can be "caught" rather than being hereditary.

The team, under Dr. Sol Spiegelman at the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, believes that what they have labeled "c-virus" may supply the answer to a controversy among cancer researchers as to whether the basic cause of cancer is a virus or a genetic inheritance.

"If the results all pan out," said Dr. Spiegelman, "It will mean that c-virus causes leukemia."

And he believes that the finding could lead ultimately to cancer control methods.

Dr. William Baxt, a member of the research team, said the researchers found a genetic "footprint" of C-virus -- which is known to cause cancer in lower animals -- in human leukemic cells. The footprint is not found in normal human cells.

"This is the first genetic difference -- let alone a difference with respect to viruses -- found between leukemic and normal cells," he said.

Leukemia is an almost always fatal increase in the number of white blood cells.

The researchers found earlier by probing DNA molecules, which carry the crucial directions for the cells, that some DNA in leukemic patients resembles DNA made from c-virus.

Recently, the researchers learned the leukemic twins of the two pairs of twins tested had the same c-virus footprint.

However, it was found that the healthy twins did not have the same traces.

Since identical twins have identical biological inheritances from their parents, the leukemia could not have been inherited by the sick twins.

In other words, the leukemic twins must have caught the virus.

Garden Club Program On Arranging

"Earth Awakening" was the program title for Fleur de lis Garden Club's March meeting at the home of Mrs. Don Humble.

Mrs. T. H. Wardlaw, artist and former professional flower arranger, presented the program on flower arranging, constructing a centerpiece type flower arrangement as she spoke.

"Before starting your arrangement consider what purpose it will serve and where it will be displayed," Mrs. Wardlaw said. Describing the basic lines for flower arrangements, she emphasized that all flowers should radiate out from a center point with no stems crossing.

She noted that small flowers should be placed to the outside of the arrangement with larger, focus flowers towards the center. "Colors also imply weight," she said, "so vivid or darker colors should be towards the center with lighter shades at the outside."

During the business meeting Mrs. Ed Magre, flower show chairman, presented schedules for the April 26 flower show which will be a placement show.

Following the meeting lime sodas, cookies and mints were served by the co-hostesses, Mrs. Dana Kestbaum, Mrs. William Kehn and Mrs. Humble.

Twin 200's Get 2 New Entries

COLLEGE STATION
New entries received in each division of the Texas Twin 200's doubleheader are Al Unser and Ramo Scott. Unser, one of only four men to win back-to-back In-dianapolis 500's, has en-tered his newly designed Of-fy-powered Parnelli in the first of the two 200-mile events scheduled at Texas World Speedway on Saturday April 7th. His entry is in the Championship division.

The former National Dri-ving Champion has finished in the top two positions at Indianapolis four times in his last five attempts.

Ramo Scott, driving a Dodge, heads a strong list of contenders in the Stock Car category for the second of the twin 200-mile races.

Before joining USAC in 1972 Scott was a former Au-tomobile Racing Club of Am-erica champion and past winner of the prestigious Daytona ARCA 300 at the Daytona International Speed-way.

Last year Scott won the stock car counterpart of the Michigan Twin 200's by only a few feet to increase his to-tal of super speedway wins to three. In addition to wins at Daytona and Michigan, Ramo won an ARCA event at the Alabama Internation-al Motor Speedway at Talla-dega, where he also finished second in the NASCAR Tal-ladega 500.

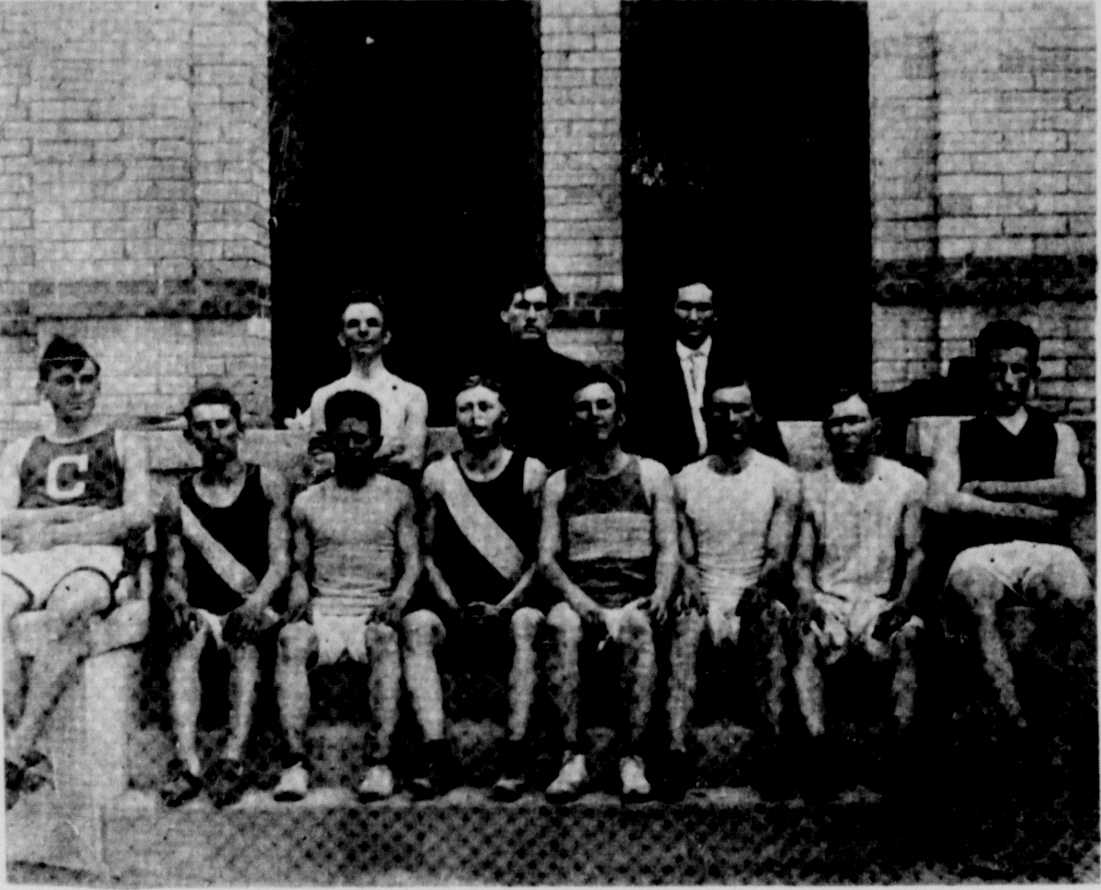

Both Unser and Stott are considered among the fier-cest competitors in their re-spective divisions.

Qualifying for the Texas Twin 200's is scheduled to be on Thursday, April 5th for the 26 positions open in the Championship race. Time trials for the 40 start-ers in the stock car divi-sion is set for Friday.

ASTROS' NEW CATCHER - A pensive Bob Watson takes a break after working out at his new position at Houston's spring training base in Cocoa, Fla. Watson's played left field and was the fifth leading hitter in the National League with a .312 average last season. Houston will play its first game in the Astrodome on March 30 against Minnesota in the first of a six-game exhibition series.

French Eye Ceasefire With Skeptical Reactions

By Bernard Edinger

PARIS
The defeat of the French army at Dienbienphu, in what is now North Vietnam, on a rainy morning in May 1954, signaled the end of nearly a century of French rule in Indochina.

But although 18 years -- and another more cataclysmic Indochina war -- have passed since then, few nations have followed subsequent events in the peninsula more closely than the French.

Despite the trauma created by the defeat at Dienbienphu, France has never been able to shake off the uneasy and hard-to-define attraction which kept it closely linked to its former far east possessions.

Some of the world's top experts on Indochina are French historians, sociologists and authors who have dealt with the issue for more than a quarter of a century.

These scholars, who have intimately known Ho Chi Minh and the other leading actors in the drama, are almost unanimous that it is only a question of time before the conflict erupts again.

They feel that none of the issues which led to either was has been solved and the conflicts there cannot remain muted for long.

"The political struggle will follow the clash in the field and there is nothing to prove quite to the contrary that the political fight will remain on a verbal level only," another journalist Jacques Decornoy wrote in the influential newspaper Le Monde.

Even more convinced than the scholars that the war will go on are those leathery veterans of the "French" war who were present in Indochina when the first conflict broke out.

Quaffing their "Vin Rouge Odinaire" over worn cafe tables, they take great delight in shocking other patrons with hair-raising accounts of the vicious bloodletting which broke out all over Indochina on Dec. 19, 1946.

The French and their communist adversaries then called Vietnam reached an agreement after World War II in which both sides had jurisdiction over certain areas.

But the agreement collapsed after numerous incidents and the start of the war was marked by a Vietnam attack on the European quarters of Hanoi. Nam Dinh and other cities of the north in which many French civilians were massacred.

The French response was pitiless and one former colonial infantry corporal tells of leaning groups of trusted over Vietnamese prisoners over bridges, shooting them in the back of the head and throwing their bodies into the river below.

Not surprisingly, the eight year French conflict was dubbed "La Sale Guerre" (The Dirty War) by the French press.

But what the veterans especially like to point out is the similarity between precarious ceasefire agreements then and now.

The French government for its part is maintaining a cautious attitude of neutrality in the present conflict.

Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said a working group had been formed to study ways in which France would aid in the reconstruction of both North and South Vietnam.

For despite the bloodletting of 1946-1954, links between the two peoples remain strong.

There is a community of 50,000 Vietnamese in France, many of whom are students in top French institutions of learning and who are destined to play leading roles in their country's future.

Accent on Health

All households contain poisons. No home is likely to be without a large bottle of aspirin, a container of some cleaning fluid, a can of caustic soda or similar product for stopped-up drains, laundry detergent or bleach, or perhaps some poison seeds for mice. In our sleeping-pill-age, barbiturates and other sedative drugs are found in many households.

More than 500,000 children-like the little girl next door or the toddler in your own home -- will swallow poison this year. Most cases reported will involve children under five years of age. Sadly, virtually all of these poisonings are preventable, says the Texas State Department of Health.

In Texas last year, there were nearly 200 fatal poisonings listed as accidental. Almost half the child poisonings involve aspirins, the single most common offender.

March 18-24, 1973, has been set aside as national "Poison Prevention Week" in an effort to focus public attention on the potential poisoning dangers widespread throughout the household.

Huge numbers of commercial products of one kind or another are either toxic or poisonous. It is sometimes difficult to know whether a particular product is dangerous or not. Many of these products often are in easy reach of children and their inquisitive young minds and hands.

In some cities, Poison Control Centers have been set up to identify the ingredients of commercial products and to offer advice to the attending physician concerning treatment. The Poison Control Center in your area is at your doctor's fingertips, and can help him diagnose symptoms, identify the substance and the proper antidote for it. The State Health Department has helped develop some 22 poison Control Centers across Texas. Information on proper antidotes is usually given directly to a physician. Thus, you should call your doctor first, and take a sample of suspected poison or its container with you to the hospital emergency room.

Obviously, many of the commercial products that are accidentally swallowed may not be particularly dangerous. However, if one is not sure, and the nature of the product cannot be identified quickly, a good rule is always to treat it as a potential poison.

There are now broad types of treatment for poison victims: the "evacuate" treatment, and the "dilute-and-neutralize" treatment.

Aging Actives To Attend San Antonio Conference

SAN ANTONIO Aging "actives" will converge on this city March 18-20 for the 10th annual Governor's Conference on Aging at the Menger Hotel.

Open to the public, the conference will feature "A New Day for Older Texans" as its theme.

Participants will deal with a list of issues including housing, the role of private agencies, and local government's responsibility to the elderly.

Sponsored by the Governor's Committee on Aging, conference organizers expect an attendance of more than 500 persons, among them chairmen of county committees on aging and project directors from throughout Texas.

They'll attend general assembly sessions, panel discussions and workshops. The hotel lobby will house about 20 exhibits on aging. Among exhibits will be one presented by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Texas A&M University, according to Mrs. Vivan Blair, Extension family life education - aging specialist, also attending the conference.

Kings Daughters Receives Grant For New Hospital

Construction of the new Hospital moved one step closer this week when the hospital received official notice of an additional $264,759 grant.

R. L. Epperson, hospital administrator, said invitations to bid on the estimated $4,250,000 project will be mailed as soon as construction plans receive final endorsement from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Epperson said approval of the plans is expected in a matter of days, and that bids are scheduled to be opened in May.

Dr. James E. Peavy, Commissioner of Health, Texas State Department of Health, notified King's Daughters on Wednesday, March 14, of the additional $264,769 funding from HEW under the Hill-Burton program.

In all, the King's Daughters project will receive $764,769 in federal grants, and $2,868,903 in interest subsidy loans.

Epperson said area residents have contributed more than $1,145,000 to the hospital's construction and equipment fund.

A new $500,000 King's Daughters Clinic will also be built at the new hospital site in Temple, located just south of the South Loop and west of South 31st Street. The clinic will be connected to the new hospital but will be financed with private funds.
